COLLABORATIVE JOURNALISM SUMMIT

Hi, everyone!

It's us again, with a couple new items.

As you're getting ready for the Collaborative Journalism Summit next week, we wanted to share two updates:

! New collaboration soundtrack drops: Check it out! The Center's audio producer/DJ, Joe Amditis, just finished his first new soundtrack for the 2022 Summit, titled S.F.A. and featuring Brandi Collins-Dexter.

? AMA with News Revenue Hub: If you're coming in person, one of our Summit sponsors, the News Revenue Hub, is providing free, private 15-minute AMA sessions. Click here to reserve your time with Mary Walter Brown, and click here to reserve your time with Rachel Glickhouse. This is open to both in-person and virtual attendees!

Also we wanted to reshare these notes from Monday's reminder email:

- Update your Zoom app: You absolutely need to do this if you are watching online, and you should do it even if you will be in person. There are a bunch of new features we are using that you won't be able to see if you don't have your Zoom app updated. Click here for instructions on how to update Zoom.
- Vaccine requirement: If you're coming in person, make sure you have your vaccine card or an electronic representation of it handy for registration.
- Masks: If you're coming in person, don't forget your mask! While Columbia College Chicago does not currently require masks, we are encouraging them when you're indoors in close groups to help us all manage risk.
- Travel: If you're coming in person, hopefully you have your travel plans for next week nailed down. If not, we have some tips here.
- Schedule: Read over our schedule and get excited!
- Survey for legal workshop: For folks who will attend the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press workshop about legal considerations for collaborations, please take this quick 3-question survey so we can tailor the session accordingly!

If you have any questions, drop us a note: summit@collaborativejournalism.org.

See you soon!
