

'CROSS-WORD' COLLABORATION

#CJS2023

ACROSS

4. The group of people that a journalist or news organization serves and interacts with.
7. A type of journalism that involves combining knowledge from different fields or disciplines.
12. The ability to understand and share the feelings of others, a quality that can help journalists tell more nuanced and human-centered stories.
13. The involvement of community members contributing to the journalism process, such as through citizen journalism or crowdsourced reporting.
14. One who primarily focuses on gathering and reporting news.
16. The restorative principle that journalists should strive to uphold, often by holding powerful individuals or institutions accountable.
18. The act of working together with other journalists or news organizations to produce a story.
19. An individual who gathers, processes, and disseminates news and information to the public.

DOWN

1. A type of journalism that not only reports on problems but also explores ways others have solved those problems.
2. The system of government that journalism serves to uphold, often by promoting informed and engaged citizenry.
3. The process of actively involving readers or viewers in the process of journalism beyond simple comments, social media, or other forms of interaction.
5. The principle of ensuring fair representation and treatment of all individuals in journalism, regardless of their background or identity.
6. Journalism that involves reporting on issues that affect multiple countries or regions.
8. The principle of including a wide range of voices and perspectives in journalism, reflecting the makeup of the community being served.
9. The ability of a journalism organization to maintain its operations over the long term, often through a combination of revenue sources.
10. The effect that a piece of journalism can have, such as prompting a change in policy or raising awareness about an issue.
11. A journalist who oversees the content of a publication or broadcast, often making decisions about what stories to cover and how to cover them.
15. The use of AI and technology to produce certain aspects of the journalism process, such as data collection or analysis.
17. The ability and influence required to shape and impact events, decisions, systems, and institutions.

Use the clues to fill in the words above. Words can go across or down. Letters are shared when the words intersect.